FROM CHAIRMAN'S DESK

Hon. Shri. Bhausaheb A. Rupnar
Chairman

I would like to congratulate and welcome our college's budding pharmacists to the world of a rewarding career. I'm delighted to know that FES, Fabtech College of Pharmacy in Sangola, is releasing its Bimonthly Nineteenth Fabtech Pharma Newsletter. Undoubtedly, the college newsletter will contribute in the promotion of the college's multiple activities. It acts as a showcase for the faculty's achievements and successes in the classroom. This strengthens the documentation culture at the institute. It also facilitates the development of teamwork, which is essential in today's competitive global environment. I hope that this tradition of sending out newsletters continues indefinitely. We educate in a unique and creative way, and our students learn in a unique and creative way. Today's pupils have a strong knowledge base and adaptability. I am confident that this will keep the pupils updated about the advancements and challenges they will encounter in the near future. This has been a watershed moment for our programme, and we are grateful for your continued support and efforts on behalf of our students. I wish all the best to the incoming Fabtech College of Pharmacy, Sangola. Pharmacists who are ready to make their mark in the pharmacy profession.

FROM MANAGING DIRECTOR'S DESK

Hon. Dr. Ameet B. Rupnar
Managing Director

I'd like to express my gratitude to Fabtech College of Pharmacy for producing this Nineteenth Fabtech Pharma newsletter. Beyond academics, it has made a name for itself among Pharmacy Colleges in the community by hosting, participating in, and organising seminars, workshops, placement exercises, health awareness campaigns, and blood donation camps, among other things. The efforts of good administration, dedicated teaching faculty, quality students, and a broad foundation of sophisticated instruments, an enlarged library, and an educationally supportive environment are undoubtedly responsible for this accomplishment. It serves as a showcase for the faculty's accomplishments and accomplishments in the classroom. This improves the institute's documentation culture. I warmly welcome you to explore this Fabtech Pharma Newsletter and make a visit to our college campus to get a feel of our vibrant academic atmosphere.

FROM CAMPUS DIRECTOR'S DESK

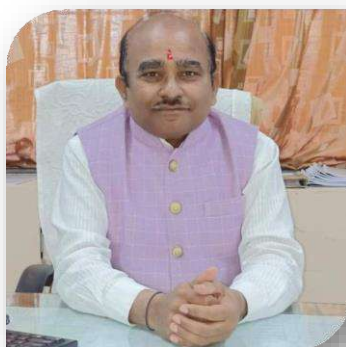

Hon. Dr. Sanjay N. Adate
Campus Director

I'd like to congratulate Fabtech College of Pharmacy, Sangola on this Nineteenth Bimonthly Fabtech Pharma Newsletter work, theory, practical, seminar presentations, and research projects are all part of the Pharmacy curriculum. Aside from academics, students are also involved in cultural and sporting activities, as well as different competitions and social activities. I am delighted to present the Nineteenth Bimonthly Fabtech Pharma Newsletter, and best wishes for the newsletter's continued success.

FROM PRINCIPAL'S DESK

Prof. Dr. S.K. Bais
Principal

The News Letter is a source of great pride and satisfaction for FES, Fabtech College of Pharmacy, Sangola. The College has made significant success in all academic and non-academic areas, as well as capacity building for staff and students. I am confident that this edition of Fabtech Pharma Newsletter will send a positive message to staff, students, and others interested in technical education and technology-based activities. A News Letter is similar to a mirror in that it displays a clear picture of all of a college's activities and helps students and teaching faculty strengthen their writing skills. I appreciate the Editorial Board of this News Letter for their hard work and efforts in completing the work in record time. Also, please accept my deepest congratulations to the staff and students for their successful efforts with Best Wishes.

National Vaccination/Immunization Day

Introduction

Vaccines have been one of the most powerful tools in the fight against infectious diseases. They protect us, our families, and our communities from harmful illnesses that can cause long-term health complications and even death. One significant day dedicated to promoting vaccination awareness is National Vaccination Day. In 2025, this day will hold special importance as we continue to strengthen our healthcare systems and encourage public participation in vaccination drives.

National Immunization Day (also called National Vaccination Day) is a nationwide healthcare event, typically observed on the 16th of March every year, intending to encourage the deserved recognition of the policymakers, the healthcare workers, as well as the other stakeholders and their works in conducting several successful vaccination drives.

India has made leaps and bounds in the field of vaccination, especially concerning its vast population, density, and scalable increase of its intensified vaccination drives.

Edward Jenner and the necessity of immunisation

The immune response is the physiological cascade of events induced by antigen exposure, leading to immune response generation to fight the antigen. The response can range from white cells (to combat antigens) to specific antibodies.

Although humans receive passive immunity through the mother via the placenta and breast milk, it alone is insufficient. Passive immunity is always short-lived. During their lifetime, humans do acquire active immunity, which could last lifelong, but obtaining active immunity risks the contraction of a disease.

Understanding the importance of obtaining active immunity (immunisation), the ancient Turks developed variolation, whereby material from a smallpox pustule was inoculated into healthy individuals. However, rather than protecting people, variolation caused widespread outbreaks. It wasn't until 1798, when Edward Jenner published the results of his research in smallpox, describing how inoculation of vaccinia (cowpox) would enable healthy people to be effectively immunised against smallpox, a way for safe immunisation was created.

History of immunisation in India

Currently, India is implementing the world's most extensive immunization program, and the healthcare workers provide significant assistance to the motherland by vaccinating even in difficult circumstances and rough terrains.

In 1995, the first dose of oral polio vaccination was administered in India on the 16th of March. Therefore, National Immunization Day denotes the government's Pulse Polio Program, which eradicated polio from the country. The World Health Organization (WHO) proclaimed India polio-free on the 27th of March 2014.

Newer vaccinations from India

COVAXIN and COVISHIELD are the newest Indian COVID vaccines, joining the vaccine inventory of India. Around 170 crore doses of COVID vaccines have been administered to date, highlighting the achievements of frontend healthcare workers across the nationwide COVID vaccination drive. The other newer vaccines include:

Inactivated Polio Vaccine (IPV)

IPV has been incorporated as part of the Global Polio Eradication Initiative. IPV was first launched in November 2015 in six states, and by April 2016, it had been rolled out nationwide.

Rotavirus vaccine (RVV)

In March 2016, RVV was launched in 11 states to lessen the mortality and morbidity caused by Rotavirus diarrhoea. In 2019-20, the vaccination drive was expanded across the country.

Measles-Rubella (MR) vaccine

Dedicated to measles eradication and rubella control goals, India in 2017 introduced the MR vaccine, which targeted 41 crore children from 9 months to 15 years.

Vaccination for a Healthier Future

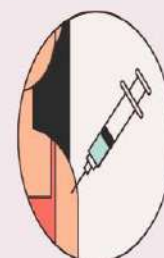

Protects Public Health – Prevents deadly diseases and strengthens immunity worldwide.

Boosts Herd Immunity – Shields vulnerable groups and reduces infection spread.

Safe & Effective – Scientifically tested for safety and long-term protection.

Lifesaving Impact – Reduces disease burden and prevents outbreaks globally.

Government Initiatives – Drives awareness and ensures vaccine accessibility.

Pneumococcal Conjugate Vaccine (PCV)

Launched in May 2017, PCV in 5 states reduced infant mortality and morbidity caused by pneumococcal pneumonia.

Tetanus and adult diphtheria (Td) vaccine

Td vaccination has substituted the tetanus toxoid (TT) vaccine to prevent diphtheria immunity from fading in older age groups. The Td vaccination will be provided to 10 and 16-year-old adolescents and pregnant women.

Why Is National Vaccination Day Important?

The significance of National Vaccination Day lies in its ability to highlight the importance of vaccines in protecting public health. Vaccination is one of the most effective and cost-efficient ways to prevent diseases that can lead to serious health complications or even death. By immunizing large populations, we not only prevent the spread of infectious diseases but also protect vulnerable groups, including the elderly, pregnant women, and those with weakened immune systems.

In addition to raising awareness, National Vaccination Day also helps address the myths and misconceptions surrounding vaccines. These misconceptions, often fueled by misinformation, have led to vaccine hesitancy in some communities. National Vaccination Day serves as an opportunity to clear these doubts and provide reliable, evidence-based information about the safety and effectiveness of vaccines.

How Vaccination Drives Have Impacted Public Health

Over the years, vaccination campaigns in India and across the world have led to dramatic reductions in the incidence of diseases like polio, smallpox, and measles. These diseases, which once caused widespread suffering, are now rare thanks to the power of immunization. For instance, the eradication of smallpox in 1980, followed by the elimination of polio from many countries, is a testament to the effectiveness of global vaccination efforts.

In India, the Pulse Polio Immunization Programme, which started in 1995, has been especially successful. It not only led to the polio-free status but also helped build a robust vaccination infrastructure in the country. As a result, immunization rates have steadily improved, contributing to the decline of diseases such as tuberculosis, hepatitis, and more recently, COVID-19.

The Significance of National Vaccination Day

National Vaccination Day 2025 will carry forward the momentum of previous years' celebrations and focus on several key objectives:

Raising Awareness

The day will highlight the importance of vaccination and the life-saving benefits it offers, not only for individuals but also for society as a whole. Through awareness campaigns, communities will be encouraged to understand why vaccines are essential in preventing outbreaks and the spread of dangerous diseases.

Promoting Adherence to Vaccination Schedules

One of the goals of National Vaccination Day 2025 will be to stress the importance of adhering to vaccination schedules, especially for children. By ensuring that individuals receive the necessary vaccinations at the recommended times, we can minimize the risk of disease outbreaks.

Addressing Vaccine Myths and Misconceptions

In an era of social media and the rapid spread of information (and misinformation), it is crucial to combat myths about vaccines. National Vaccination Day will aim to correct false information, focusing on the scientific evidence supporting vaccine safety and efficacy.

Strengthening Government Vaccination Initiatives

National Vaccination Day provides an opportunity to recognize and support the efforts of government vaccination programs. These programs play a crucial role in ensuring that vaccines are accessible to everyone, especially in remote or underserved areas.

Recognizing Healthcare Workers and Frontline Heroes

Healthcare workers, from doctors to nurses and community health workers, have been at the forefront of vaccination campaigns. They continue to work tirelessly to ensure that vaccines reach those in need, often in challenging conditions. National Vaccination Day serves as a moment to thank them for their dedication and commitment to public health.

Vaccination Programs in India

1. Universal Immunisation Programme (UIP) – Launched in 1985

- One of the largest public health programs in the world.
- Provides free vaccines against:
 - Polio
 - Measles
 - Hepatitis B
 - Tuberculosis (BCG)
 - Diphtheria, Pertussis, Tetanus (DPT)
 - Rotavirus
 - Pneumococcal infections
 - Rubella

2. Pulse Polio Programme

- Special nationwide drives to immunize children below 5 years with oral polio drops.

3. Mission Indradhanush (launched in 2014)

- Aimed to achieve 90% immunization coverage in India.
- Focuses on children and pregnant women who missed routine vaccinations.

Achievements & Broader Immunization Goals

Polio eradication

The Pulse Polio campaign, which began on this day, culminated in India's polio-free status in 2014.

Expanding Routine Immunization

Under the Universal Immunisation Programme (UIP, started 1985), vaccines against diseases like measles, hepatitis B, rotavirus, pneumococcal infections, rubella, and more have been scaled up.

Targeted Campaigns

Initiatives like Mission Indradhanush and Intensified Mission Indradhanush strive for $\geq 90\%$ full immunization coverage for children and pregnant women

Vaccinations Benefits

- ✓ Vaccination is one of the most effective public health interventions ever developed. Here are some benefits of vaccination:
- ✓ Vaccination is essential for avoiding the spread of infectious illnesses within populations.
- ✓ It enhances immunity to specific viruses or bacteria, lowering the danger of outbreaks and epidemics.
- ✓ Vaccination protects people, particularly those who are vulnerable, such as infants, older people, and immunocompromised people.
- ✓ It contributes to herd immunity, in which many people are immune, offering indirect protection to individuals who cannot get vaccinated.
- ✓ Vaccination is an inexpensive public health measure that saves lives and prevents long-term health consequences caused by infectious diseases.

Benefits of Immunization

- Prevents the spread of infectious diseases.
- Reduces the risk of serious illness and complications.
- Protects vulnerable populations, such as infants, elderly, and those with weakened immune systems.
- Contributes to herd immunity, making it harder for diseases to spread within communities.
- Saves lives by preventing numerous deadly diseases.
- Lowers healthcare costs by reducing the burden of treating preventable diseases.
- Supports public health efforts to control and eliminate certain diseases.
- Increases overall community and global health and well-being.
